
DARRYN BRYANT, University of Queensland

Repacking in cycle decompositions.

A method which takes a decomposition of a graph into edge-disjoint cycles and produces a decomposition of a new graph into edge-disjoint cycles of the same lengths will be discussed. This method, called repacking, underpins much of the recent progress on cycle decomposition problems.