

---

WILLIAM MARTIN, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, USA

Some problems arising in quantum information theory

In this expository talk, I will select a few topics of current interest in quantum information theory that I think are well-suited to the talents and expertise of many in the Canadian community. My goal is first to state the problems purely in terms of linear algebra and combinatorics, avoiding physics wherever possible, and also to summarize the core results and immediate challenges.