

---

DANNY DYER, Memorial University

Watching Halin graphs

The Watchman problem involves finding a closed dominating walk in a graph on minimum length. This is known to be easy in trees. This makes Halin graphs (formed from joining the leaves of a planar embedding of a tree in a cycle) a natural family of graphs to consider. We consider some recent progress on this family. Joint work with Jared Howell and Shane Andrews.