
R. SRITHARAN, University of Dayton

Graph modification problem

We consider the problems of only adding, only deleting, or adding as well as deleting the fewest number of edges to/from a given graph to obtain a graph with a specified property. We discuss the complexity of these problems for the property of membership in a variety of graph classes. Of particular note are the problems for chordal bipartite graphs that had been open.